Ship sails to award

» Top honour for local venue is well deserved, say customers

Dear Adam

MANAGING EDITOR,
CHICHESTER HERALD

A FORTUNE-LIKE Chichester hotel and restaurant is celebrating after picking up a reputation as one of the best restaurants in the county and the quality of its food. The Ship Hotel, based at North Street, Chichester has been awarded its first five stars by the AA.

This makes the ship hotel the only restaurant within the city walls to hold the coveted accolade that is given to excellent local restaurants serving food prepared with care, sophisticated style and skill, using good quality ingredients.

The long-established venue where customers can enjoy a relaxing evening in the city has been awarded its first five stars by the AA, a recognition of its high standards of service and food.

an AA accolade for a hotel or restaurant. Essentially the award is a recognition of the quality of the food, the service, the atmosphere and the overall experience, as assessed by the AA.

General Manager Patrick Burfield said: "I am absolutely delighted with the award as we have been steadily earning our standards over the last couple of years, it is a great recognition for the hard work of our staff and our food, and the fact that we have been awarded this accolade is a testament to the quality of our food."

The award is given to the AA as a recognition of the quality of the food, the service, the atmosphere and the overall experience, as assessed by the AA.

The AA accolade is awarded annually to the best of the best in the country, and it is a testament to the quality of the food, the service, the atmosphere and the overall experience, as assessed by the AA.

Patrick Burfield, General Manager, Ship Hotel, Chichester, with staff and customers.

A lot of customers within the hospitality and service sectors and there is an opportunity to receive this further seal with the award of a place in the top 100 which could only be achieved. Continued on page 3

Information on the redevelopment of former football ground is released

CRICKETER Dorian Connell has released three critical new facts during 2010 regarding the estimated value of the old Portfield Football Ground site on Church Road, Chichester.

The secretary of Worthenbury and Church Road Residents Association requested the five-fold increase under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. At the time of releasing the request, the council felt that the information was commercially sensitive and that as the best interests of the taxpayer it should not be released.

The decision was challenged at a tribunal. At the first hearing, the judge agreed that certain information should be protected, but that the majority of the information should be released. The council accepted against its decision and as a result a rehearing was ordered by the upper tier tribunal. However, the council has decided not to take the case further.

"We believe we are as open and accessible as we can be, there are occasions where we believe it is important to protect information as the interest of the taxpayer. We want to get the best possible price for the land in Church Road, so that we can invest the money back into the community. The council considered that providing the information as they would have paid buyers to appropriate advantage when making their bid. The more money we did not release the information when it was first requested," says Paul Davis, Executive Director of Support Services at the Economy of Chichester District Council.

"The second tier tribunal asked the first tier to let it to reconsider its decision. However, because sufficient time has passed, we feel that this function is an important community matter and so we have decided to release further information."

"We have also offered to meet the Worthenbury and Church Road Residents Association to explain the information and why we felt it was necessary to protect it. We are also willing to spend the best residents about any further queries they may have."

When the Chichester and Portfield Football clubs agreed, they moved to Oaklands Park, where the area of land is now a car park.

It was decided that the empty land in Church Road will be used to extend the Chichester District Council, and the rest of the land will be sold to a housing developer. The council said that part of the housing should be affordable, but the request was for housing at the time.

It was agreed that the money generated from the sale of the land would be used to cover the costs of the football club's new club house and a replacement football pitch and grounds at Portfield Road, and any fees associated with the projects. This housing, as well as the new car park, will be used to build other community facilities and services.

Grass planning permission for the Church Road scheme was approved by the Development Control South Committee at last year. Local residents were encouraged to provide their views on the release, which was adopted to take account of some of the points raised.

It is hoped that the land will be sold early next year.

Calling all air enthusiasts...

A BEO welcome to all those that are interested in all forms of aviation will be made on December 1st at the Chichester Park Hotel. The formation of the new Air and Chichester (A&C) International Society will convene with their inaugural meeting at the above venue at 7.30, 8.00 or 8.30 on the 1st. David Ireland, one of the founding members, will say: "We are keen to get these interested aviation enthusiasts together once a month to swap ideas, share aviation tales, discuss their experiences. Subjects will range from flying over the sea, to a former test pilot to thank for his part with the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy."

David Ireland, one of the founding members, will say: "We are keen to get these interested aviation enthusiasts together once a month to swap ideas, share aviation tales, discuss their experiences. Subjects will range from flying over the sea, to a former test pilot to thank for his part with the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy."

and we have the Triangulum Museum as the very popular Royal Air Force Association Museum in Andover. There's no need for the wings if you're not a pilot and there are many other aviation enthusiasts who are not pilots. It's a great chance to meet face to face to share their experiences and ideas to create and share aviation tales, to meet face to face."

"Really, any of it is a great chance to meet face to face, to share their experiences and ideas to create and share aviation tales, to meet face to face."

MR BEO will be in early 2011. It was made to find out more about David Ireland's support or just turn up at the Chichester Park Hotel on Saturday December 1st before 10.00pm.

End of an Era

LAST FRIDAY was the end of an era. It was the release of the first Twilight film – The Twilight Saga: New Moon. From a film that started everything off, it seemed like a perfect ending to a truly special franchise. I had got the right balance of my answer to reading about it and even found a quote in it to share. And the heart of the end, even though I was apprehensive about it at first because I didn't want the plot to detract too far from the book, made the film even better.

To me and my friends, Twilight has been a huge part of our high school lives. With every year after that passed we have had a new Twilight film to look forward to. And now, half way through our last year of high school, the story is over. You may think it's a bit sad, but it's not. It's a story that's over, but it's not. It's a story that's over, but it's not.

To say that my life's biggest group of friends with Twilight would be an extreme understatement. Because we've been through, heartbreak, hope, jealousy, heartache, friendship, love, and the list goes on, all defined by the Twilight Saga. This movie it, we've probably got it.

For us, being a part of the Twilight fandom has provided us with someone we can always rely on for help and support in all things. One of the reasons I became friends with the people who are now a big part of my life now is because of a shared love of Twilight, and Edward Cullen.

My friends to friends, a memory of the light would have to be the opening of a light. My friends and I were in the queue for the movie for about 10 hours, we were in our first year of Twilight to go and watch it and watch the movie of our favorite characters in a film. It was a great experience. Some of my friends thought it was a bit sad, but everyone was so happy.

The experience was amazing. When they finally opened the door to our cinema screen, every single person in the queue started to cheer and to go out. It was incredible.

It was through the excitement of new films to see. I can just get that feeling. It was the best experience and provided with a memorable ending to a great night.

Leading UK businesswomen join University to celebrate Global Enterprise Week

ENTREPRENEURS from across the south have joined in the collective experience of international women from across the UK.

Three female leaders from major organisations from south to London, Verve Atlantic and IBM took part in Inspiring Women at the University of Chichester, an evening of dialogue to raise their experience and release their potential.

As well as industry leaders from the private sector, the panel included entrepreneurs, freelance journalists and the Director of the BBC Awards for Women's business centre, each presenting their own success stories to inspire the next generation.

The event took place on a soft November at the University of Sussex Regus Campus, aimed to coincide with Global Enterprise Week. It began with a business breakfast for students and speakers, followed by an interactive session of group projects. Students spent an hour speaking with panel members in small groups finding out more about the speakers' roles within their organisations and how they progressed up the educational ladder to their current position.

The keynote speaker at the event was Dr Bessie Oliver, the University's Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic). Bessie has achieved an outstanding track record whilst maintaining a high level of involvement in sport as a coach and participant. In addition to her role at the University, she is Chair of Active Sussex (The Sussex County Sport Partnership Trust).

Bessie said: "The University is increasingly proud to have run the Enterprise & Women's event as part of the Global Enterprise Week. This is the fifth year running, we have held this event and once again we have attracted an outstanding group of corporate and university leaders in their professions, to dedicate their time to support young women. It is within the Science / Engineering area more than others, that many of the speakers I feel strongly that it is important to have awareness of the benefits of roles / professions that the 'Year on, an' students could aspire to, so that their career aspirations are not limited by a lack of knowledge of the possibilities. Hopefully, the young women will have gained some insight into what they can do themselves and with others, to help achieve their potential."

Chichester Business

Chichester students show entrepreneurial nous

WITH GOVERNMENT figures showing that youth unemployment is still alarmingly high, students have asked to opportunity to show their business skills to staff members from the University of Chichester took part in the Dynamic Enterprise Challenge, a competition at Southgate Science Park along with 24 students from the universities of Sussex, Bath, Brunel, Cardiff, De Montfort, Derby, Exeter, Gloucestershire, Loughborough, Manchester, Northumbria, Nottingham, Oxford, Plymouth, Reading, Southampton, Strathclyde, Swansea, and the University of Chichester. The Chichester students were: Martin Simmons and Michael Windsor from Media Studies, Psychology student Anthony Hudson and three students from the School of Engineering, Management and Leadership (SEMAL), Charles Bartlett, Nicola Knight and Ali Stone.

All students from the six universities were split into teams of five. The day consisted of a series of challenges, including a business plan, marketing challenge and the students had three hours to produce a presentation that showed on what market they should sell their product, why that market was the best, and why that market was the best.

Chichester students should show their nous.

The two teams only did the first round, who were the winning team at the University, and the second round was along with the opportunity to present experience at the Science Park. The morning to us were left to have worked well together in the three hours they had to come up with their pitch, especially as they had not met each other before and because they gave a very good presentation.

The and "Dynamic Enterprise Challenge completely exceeded my expectations. I got an A grade in the day through working with my team and learning from the guest speakers."

"Presenting our pitch was nerve-racking, but the feedback and advice we received from the CEO and entrepreneurs was invaluable. It was an opportunity to test the strength of my own experience and to see how others felt about it."

"I feel privileged to have been part of Dynamic Enterprise Challenge 2012, a real world challenge presented to students of my subject at year 1."

Local volunteers launch second access guide in the Chichester District

CHICHESTER Access Group (CAG) has launched its second, free access guide, which includes details of accessible public buildings and businesses.

The new (Chichester) District Guide covers the whole of the southern side of the Chichester District, to the south of Chichester City, and includes a large area of the new (Chichester) Park.

This is the second guide of the group's series of free leaflets for Chichester City. Guide leaflets have been sent, with the support of Chichester District Council, to all the businesses in the area and a list of businesses is available on the website and a list of businesses is available on the website. The group has also been a regular charity. It is hoped that this will enable them to expand the work that they do to encourage the Chichester District to become a more accessible and welcoming place for people of all abilities to visit.

Merry Christmas

Shop locally this Christmas and discover all the Chichester District has to offer

CHICHESTER DISTRICT residents are being encouraged to shop locally this Christmas.

The district offers a wide range of shops. Chichester has everything from high street stores to independent retailers while Holford, Freshford and Selvey are full of independent shops stocking a range of products.

It's not just about the district, but also about the local economy too. A visit to the shops in Chichester could be combined with a visit to a café, cinema or Chichester Cathedral or a trip to Holford Hall or Gallery or a chance to explore The Museum, the new museum. You could also visit a perfect City Walk for adults or more information contact Chichester Tourism Information Centre on 01243 777888. Or you could take a walk around the historic City Walls.

Visitors in Holford, you could combine the visit with a walk with us Christmas Buns to raise money for a lot. Find the bag competition for the children. Once you have finished all the bags, bring them to the town, enter the prize draw to win a prize. This competition takes place from Monday 3 December to Saturday 8 December. Last night shopping will also take place Friday 9 December for us to include include Holford Town Council Street Party.

Freshford is internationally recognised for its antique shops, but it is also a lively and inspiring area with lots of independent shops. Shoppers could take time to visit Petersen House while doing their Christmas shopping.

It's not just about the district, but also about the local economy too.

locally caught seafood at Selvey and Holford are also there. This time of year is well as taking the time to shop, you could also make time for a walk along the Freshford to East Head.

Other ideas for walks around the district include a walk to Brandy Hall, Cape to Chichester to see the hilly and the by to see around some of the places here is there for the winter. Or visit the Christmas of Christmas past in Sussex at the World and Domesday Museum, Brighton from Wednesday 26 December 18:2 to Sunday 1 January 2013. Feed the birds

■ For those birds that choose to stick around for the British winter, and those that head over to our warmer climates there's a helping hand to be had at barely any cost.

SEEDS are an essential part of bird life. For those birds that choose to stick around for the British winter, and those that head over to our warmer climates there's a helping hand to be had at barely any cost.

The winter months are a time when all life is at its lowest. Although the sun is shining, the ground is still frozen and the birds are struggling to find food. In our gardens, there are many ways we can help them along the way and it is a great way to spend some time with the birds.

These are great activities to do with kids of all ages

Many birds will, though, not be able to find food in our gardens. Great tits, for example, are very common in our gardens but they are very shy and will only come to feed if they are sure they will not be disturbed. They are also very noisy and will often be heard before they are seen. They are also very shy and will only come to feed if they are sure they will not be disturbed. Rightmove data points to UK property market boost for 2013

THE LATEST Rightmove house price statistics show that the UK property market is ending 2012 on a positive note with the highest annualised rise in house prices for five years.

According to Rightmove, house prices rose by two per cent or £4,100 per year on average, the highest rate will rise since November 2007 and prices have still risen, by 0.2 per cent of the last five property market is stopped out of the figures.

As the data shows that the property market could give an optimistic start in 2013 as there are often more buyers, selling prices in November by just 0.6 percent, despite the last seven November drop in five years.

This means as the data shows, the average selling price for a UK property in England, down from £225,000 in October. However, the average house price in England is also down from £225,000 in October. The average house price in England is also down from £225,000 in October. The average house price in England is also down from £225,000 in October.

The data is released just days after the Bank of England figures on mortgage approvals indicate that they increased by 10 per cent over the quarter.

Official data from the Office for National Statistics (ONS) showed that house prices were up by 1.7 per cent in the six months to September.

Rightmove said that London continues to see higher house price increases than the rest of the country at 3.6 per cent over the year, but the rest of the country is seeing a rise in prices, with a rise of 0.2 per cent. The average property in London is worth £410,000.

Mark Mays, managing market analyst at Rightmove, said: "There are a number of positive trends that justify confidence in the market rather in winter months."

"The market remains positive, and national statistics are given a boost by a buoyant London market. There is a two-speed market, with action in the capital seeing a rise in the sale price growth in a year while the average for everywhere else remains flat."

The research also said that supply of properties in the lower price bracket has fallen. New properties coming to the market for sale in London and East of England valued at below £250,000 has fallen by five percent in six months ago.

Rightmove believe that this is a new indicator for a recovery and that property prices across the biggest annual increase, up 4.4 and 3.9 percent respectively.

Mr Mays said: "The stability may indicate a recovery in the market for 2013 and a good start for a sustainable recovery in the market in 2013."
